

The Importance of having a Second Passport – Metallicman

 metallicman.com/laoban4site/the-importance-of-having-a-second-passport

conging yu

July 15, 2018

When America was a first-world nation, and was the preeminent leader of the “free world”, the idea of having a second passport sounded... well, silly. Why would any American want to get a second passport. An American passport was an automatic door to world-wide travel and freedom to enjoy the liberties and protections that came with being an American. So getting a second passport; and inferior passport, was laughable.

Not so today.

Today, America is not a first-class nation. It is a second-class nation, and it is quickly devolving into a third-class nation. If you, the reader cannot see this, then I suggest you step outside the borders of America and start to look around you. I don't mean Mexico. It is easy to feel superior when you live next door to endless sprawling slums. I mean Asia. I mean middle-class Africa. I mean Eastern Europe.

Go and have a nice long look around.

The Winds of Change are a Blowing...

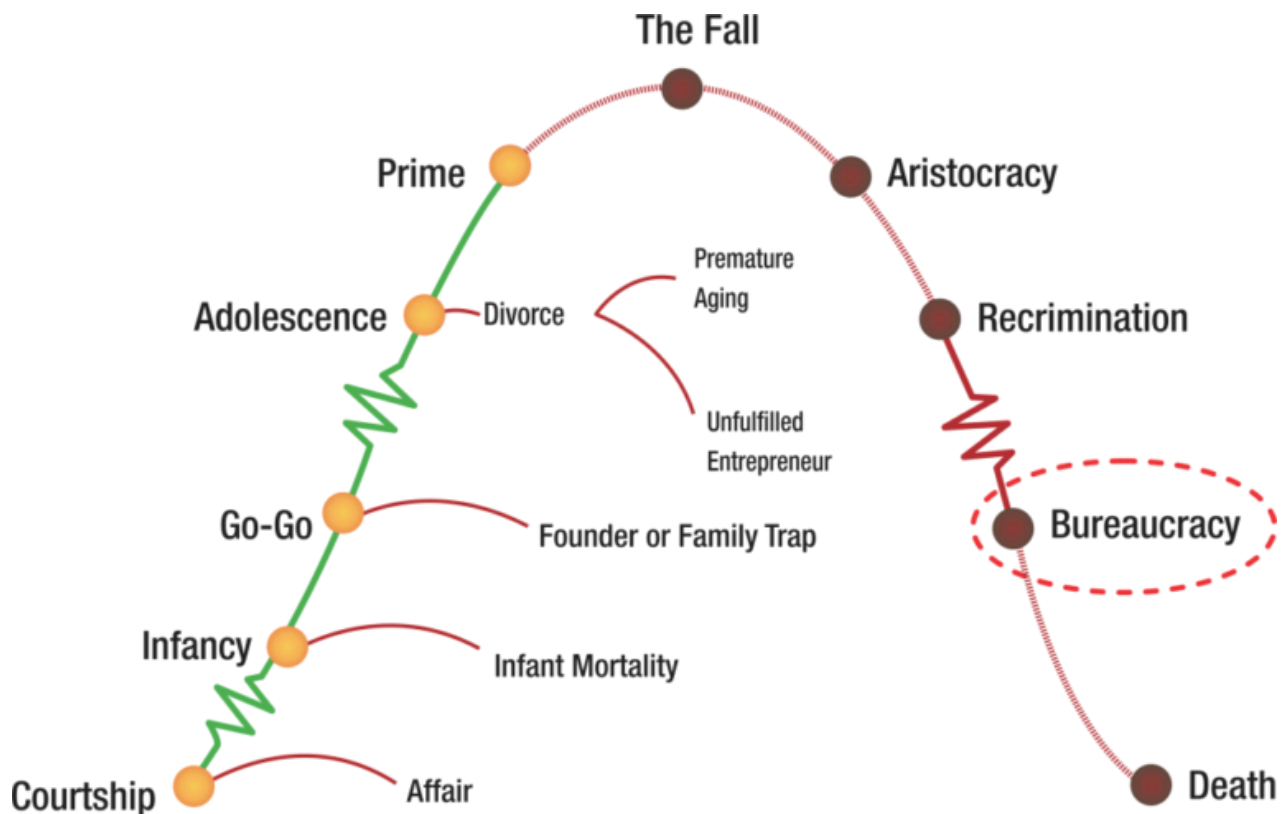

Growing up, the idea of going to work for a big company for 30 or 40 years, and then retiring to a golf course or rocking chair somewhere, was something completely alien to me. People my age nowadays mostly expect to work full time until age 75 or more. We can forget about pensions and Social Security.

-Three Economics Lessons I Learned from my Dad

America, like many nations before it, is succumbing to the changes that all nations go through. It is a natural process. It is also a well documented process. Nothing stays the same, it only changes over time.

| America is due for a nice big reset.

Here is the life cycle of all systems. These systems can be biological, cultural, or social. The presence of a bureaucracy on the life cycle is a serious sign of decline of the culture.

In our case, it is certainly unfortunate. Indeed, it is sad and it is lamentable, but it is exactly what it is. America is solidly on the path of collapse and after that rebirth.

America is going to be reborn. That's the good news.

America will have to go through some changes to get there. That's the bad news.

What shape it will evolve into is anyone's guess. Many millennials are hoping for a totalitarian socialist state. This would be one with a disarmed populace who works for a benevolent government who provides food, shelter and entertainment for an obedient citizenry. On the other side of the coin are traditionalists who want a return to the intent of the original Constitution.

It's all or nothing. Neither side will compromise simple because there is no room for compromise.

In the meantime, the United States will undergo an uncomfortable period of adjustment and change. Hopefully it will be short lived, manageable, and the nation and the citizens will recover quickly from it. Hopefully there will not be any kind of military confrontation, or socialist purges, or other elements of discomfort.

| America is heading towards an adjustment of it's society.

During this period of discomfort, it might be a good idea to be able to step outside the United States for a brief period of time... like a lifeboat, while the United States goes through the "big reset". You know, to keep you and your family safe while the most uncomfortable aspects of the reset go through their process. What do you think?

The Big Reset

The "big reset" is my term for what other people are referring to as the "Fourth Turning". It is a period of change and adjustment within society. The theory is a simple one and goes something like this;

All things mature. People, plants, and societies. Maturity has stages. These include birth, growth, middle age, decay and death. Death That includes America.

Now, death need no mean destruction. It means change.

America is long overdue for a reset. The last reset was in 1929 stock market crash. A nice overview of this theory can be found in the Fourth Turning website found HERE. Here is a nice write-up found HERE concerning what is expected to transpire in the next ten years or so...

Periodically, society experiences a transition from one turning to another. Today we have just experienced such a transition.

The frenzied individualism and carnival culture of the recent Third Turning—the years of the Roaring '90s, the Dot-com Boom, and the Greenspan Asset Bubble—is fading into memory.

America has entered a Fourth Turning, marked by new sobriety about unpaid debts at home and unmet challenges abroad.

Like all turnings, the current Fourth Turning will draw its momentum from the aging of each generation into a new phase of life.

Unlike the last three turnings, the emerging lineup of generational archetypes is likely to push history forward in a sudden, concerted, and decisive direction.

As visionary Boomers replace the Silent as elder leaders, they are rejecting caution and compromise and acting on moral absolutes.

As pragmatic Gen-Xers replace Boomers in midlife, they are manifesting a new toughness and resolution as hands-on managers.

As group-oriented Millennials replace Gen Xers in young adulthood, they are getting ready to mobilize behind some new model of public authority with collective action and social discipline.

All of these generations are likely to view the recent Third Turning as an era of drift when public problems were allowed to accumulate—problems that must now be tackled head-on.

There are many potential threats that could feed a growing sense of public urgency as the Fourth Turning progresses, from financial collapse to a protracted war, from a crisis of weapons proliferation to an environmental crisis, from an energy shortage to new civil wars abroad.

The generational cycle cannot explain the role or timing of these individual threats.

It cannot account for specific great incidents in history, like Pearl Harbor, or President Kennedy's assassination, or 9/11.

What it can do is explain when Crisis or Awakening events are most likely to happen—and, even more importantly, how society is likely to respond to these events in different eras.

It is the response, not the initial event, which defines an era.

In Anglo-American history, there have been six Fourth Turnings dating back to the fifteenth century (see Historical Turnings).

In the modern history of many other societies whose generational currents have run roughly parallel to that of the United States (especially in Europe and Asia), there have been many other Fourth Turnings.

By observing the similarities in how these eras unfold, a morphology can be constructed.

A Crisis era begins with a catalyst, a startling event (or sequence of events) that produces a sudden shift in mood.

In America's last Fourth Turning, the catalyst was the 1929 stock market crash.

In the current era, we may ultimately look back on the global market meltdown and historic national election of 2008--ushering in a "Great Recession" and a seemingly endless era of deleveraging--as the initial mood-changer.

Several years after the catalyst, society enters a regeneracy, a drawing together of the community in response to a worsening outlook and a growing determination to surmount the challenge.

Thus regenerated, a society then propels toward a climax—a crucial moment that confirms the death of the old order and triumph of the new.

The climax can end well, badly, or some combination of both. Either way, it shakes a society to its roots, transforms institutions, redirects social purposes, and marks people (and generations) for life.

Eventually, the mood transforms into the exhaustion and relief of resolution, the moment when treaties are signed and celebrations are staged.

As the new order quickly hardens and people embrace dreams of domestic contentment, the Crisis era ends and society enters the First Turning of the next saeculum.

Roughly twenty years, in most cases, will have elapsed since the catalyst. In today's context, we at LifeCourse anticipate the end of the Fourth Turning to occur sometime in the late 2020s.

By then, we expect that a new "Homeland Generation" (born, 2005– ?) will begin to come of age as young adults. We tentatively tag them as belonging to the Artist archetype.

They will strike older Americans as well-educated, well-behaved, risk averse, and perhaps also credulous and conformist.

As America moves into a Fourth Turning, this will be a time of great national trial and upheaval.

Yet seeing this on the horizon is not a prophesy of some horrible tragedy.

A Fourth Turning also could be a time of triumph. Just as the risk of war is great in a Fourth Turning, so too is the possibility of accomplishing things that in other eras would be impossible—particularly in the areas of government, institutions, and infrastructure.

It's important to remember that Fourth Turnings have occurred many times before in American history.

Each has been an era when America felt good about itself as a society and a nation, a time when big problems have been solved, when businesses ultimately emerged prosperous, and when people came together with a new ethic of community and consensus.

There will be grand reset, call it what you may. It will still be a bit uncomfortable. If you, the reader, wants to bunker down and settle in during the duration – I wish you the best. For me, I got off the rocking ship and swam to a distant island where I can watch the boat toss and turn in the horrible storm.

An Island within the Storm

I view having a passport as an island in a storm. It is your ticket to get off a boat that is near calamity, and make it safely to a refuge. The American passport can do that.

There is only one problem...

There are forces within the United States that want to limit your access to your passport. Already the IRS can seize your passport if you have unpaid taxes. Liberal democrats are talking about linking the passport to health plans and other things that will create a spider-web maze to untangle. A wall is being built on the Mexican border to make America “safer”, and new rules are being created to control migration.

How can you get “off the boat” to safety, when someone else is holding your “life jacket”?

The answer is with a second passport.

About Passports

Did you know, that before World War I, you didn't need a passport for international travel. That's right. You simply would just go to where ever you desired to go to. As such, people simply went wherever they wanted. In many cases, they didn't need any kind of permission from a government agency. In fact, up until recently, you could enter Canada, and Mexico without a passport and return back to the United States, all that you would need was a driver's license. Well, that ended by DHS pronouncement.

Now, obviously, quite a lot has happened since then.

Today, passports are used by governments to document and control their citizens. It is used to track people. It is used to identify people. It is used to tag people as dangerous and as necessary limit their ability to fly (no-fly list) and use public transportation.

So, today, if you want to go to another nation, you need a passport to do so.

Benefits of a Second Passport

A second passport keeps the government from locking you in under their rules. Today in America the US government ignores the fourth amendment. They can seize anything you own, and they do not even need a charge, a suspicion of criminal intent, or even a warrant. They can just come and take what ever they want.

Allowing a government with this kind of power to possess the keys to the gates of the country is simply irresponsible. Without a passport, the government in your home country can effectively place you under house arrest by taking back your passport. Then you are trapped inside America.

While this is a fundamental item of great importance, there are other reasons as well. Among other things, having a second passport allows you to invest, bank, travel, live, and do business in places you wouldn't otherwise be able to. Many nations no longer allow Americans to bank in their nation. The IRS has made it difficult for the banks and the nations, with substantial penalties for non-compliance to American regulations.

Americans are not welcome. I was denied a HK bank account simply because I was an American. They explained to me that the bank would take on an enormous risk if somehow they made a mistake or the rules for reporting changed. Therefore, since my projected account was considered to be tiny, they felt that the risk element was too large for them to accept.

Obtaining a second passport is a fundamental step toward freeing yourself from absolute dependence on any one country. Once you have that freedom, it's much harder for any government to control your destiny.

No matter where you live, you can benefit from the political diversification that comes with a second passport.

Here are some reasons why you should have a second passport...

[1] Banking

The Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA) is a 2010 United States federal law requiring all non-U.S. ('foreign') financial institutions (FFIs) to search their records for customers with indicia of 'U.S.-person' status, such as a U.S. place of birth, and to report the assets and identities of such persons to the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

FATCA also requires such persons to self-report their non-U.S. financial assets annually to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) on form 8938, which is in addition to the older and further redundant requirement to self-report them annually to the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) on form 114 (also known as 'FBAR').

Like U.S. income tax law, FATCA applies to U.S. residents and also to U.S. citizens and green card holders residing in other countries.

A second passport unlocks the door to international financial services. This is especially true for Americans. Ever since Obama was President, U.S. regulators have a long reach. Thanks to him and his cronies, the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA) is now the law of the land.

This is why many, but not yet all, foreign financial institutions now turn away anyone who presents a U.S. passport. I can confirm that this is true in Hong Kong, Macao, and now (as of 2017) Communist China.

To be a welcome customer, you need a passport from a different country. Americans are not welcome.

It is not so much about the money that you have. Not really. Though, I suppose that if I had a million dollars that they would accept my banking services. But that is way, way out of the reach for most Americans. At best, I might be able to save maybe $500 in a bank account. In my entire life, I don't think that I ever had more than $7,000 in any bank account.

The issue is however, not the amount of money you have. It is the reporting regulations and potential penalties of non-compliance that the bank associates with YOUR passport.

The penalties for failing to file FBARs are severe. There is a minimum $10,000 penalty if your failure to file was inadvertent. However, if you are found guilty of willfully not filing a FBAR, the minimum fine is $100,000 or half the value of the account, whichever is greater.

- NoLo

[2] Stigma of Being a Warmonger

Say your home government has a bad habit of sticking its nose in other nations' internal affairs. This is most certainly true with the United States, as we have been at war almost ever year since our founding.

Remember that one of the first thing a terrorist does when they capture hostages is to collect their passports. If you are from Israel, you are most certainly targeted. However, being an American has increasingly, become a significant liability.

Indeed, this could make you a target if you happen to be in the wrong place at the wrong time, like the next time ISIS radicals decide to attack a public area. Or when you are in a foreign land, and you are pulled over to show your passport...

You do NOT want to be caught with an American passport in certain areas of the globe. Increasingly any Muslim dominant area will put you at a great disadvantage. This is now also an issue in certain areas of Europe as well.

For a better appreciation of this situation, I would suggest viewing the movie "No Escape".

There are, of course, passports with minimal risk of foreign policy blowback. When was the last time you heard of anyone targeting Swiss passport holders, Italian passport holders or rounding up Uruguayans?

[3] Avoiding Visa Applications and Fees

Applying for a visa before a trip is a real hassle. It can be frustrating, time-consuming, and expensive. Or not. The thing is that it does take time, and it will cost money. Sometimes you need to show up in person at the embassy to handle this hassle, and it is a painful waste of the day.

A good second passport gives you visa-free access to more countries than you had before.

Take Paraguay, for example. It's one of the easiest countries in the world to obtain a second passport from. A passport from Paraguay lets you travel visa-free to 123 countries, including most of Latin American and much of Europe. No one ever worries about a person from Paraguay. Have you ever heard of a terrorist, bank robber, sex fiend or evil banker from Paraguay?

Paraguay, you ask. Where is Paraguay?

Here is where Paraguay is. It is a nice calm and sable, but poor, nation next to Brazil and Argentina. It is a Catholic nation that speaks Spanish.

[4] Avoiding Government Targeting

A second passport can also come in handy when your home government starts restricting where its citizens can go. For example, after Castro came to power in Cuba, the government used to make its citizens apply for an exit visa to leave the island. It did not grant them easily.

Preventing people from leaving has always been the hallmark of an authoritarian regime. Unfortunately, the practice is growing in so-called liberal democracies for ever more trivial offenses. In the U.S., for example, the government can cancel your passport if they accuse you of a felony. They don't even need to convict you.

Many people think felonies only consist of major crimes like robbery and murder.

But that isn't true.

"...federal criminal laws have become dangerously disconnected from the English common law tradition and how prosecutors can pin arguable federal crimes on any one of us, for even the most seemingly innocuous behavior.

The volume of federal crimes in recent decades has increased well beyond the statute books and into the morass of the Code of Federal Regulations, handing federal prosecutors an additional trove of vague and exceedingly complex and technical prohibitions to stick on their hapless targets."

- Kottke

The ever-expanding mountain of laws and regulations has criminalized even the most mundane activities. It's not as hard to commit a felony as you might think. Many victimless "crimes" are now felonies. It varies from state to state. Some crimes are misdemeanors in some areas, and full-bore felonies in others. For instance...

Having one marijuana cigarette.

"Smoking or ingesting marijuana is a separate misdemeanor. In most locations, including your home, marijuana use will only get you 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Possessing marijuana in a park is a more serious crime, which can even be deemed a felony at a judge's discretion, and this crime carries a two-year sentence."

-Marijuana Laws in Michigan | LegalMatch Law Library

- Unpaid taxes.
- Failure to appear to a summons.
- Smoking a cigarette in a car with a minor.
- Jaywalking in certain states.
- Drinking a beer on a Sunday.
- Removing a tree from your yard without a permit.
- Driving on a suspended license.
- Having a fire in your backyard.
- Failure to shovel your sidewalk in the winter.
- Carrying an open can of beer while crossing the street.
- Bringing your dog into a restaurant with you.

Keep in mind, these crimes are given equal legal status as murder, kidnapping, manslaughter and child prostitution in certain states. You do need to be careful.

People this is not the world of Perry Mason, and Mayberry RFD. This is the new world of Barrack Obama, Hillary Clinton, Lois Learner, and Maxine Walters. You all need to open your eyes to the new reality of the "improved" United States.

A study by civil liberty lawyer Harvey Silverglate found that the average American inadvertently commits three felonies a day. It's true. But, that hasn't slowed anyone down in the non-stop churning out of laws and regulations.

- 8 Ways We Regularly Commit Felonies Without Realizing It
- How Many Felonies Did You Commit Today?
- You commit three felonies a day
- You Commit Three Felonies a Day – WSJ

"We know what happened in the case of QWest before 9/11.

They (the government) contacted the CEO/Chairman asking to wiretap all the customers. After he consulted with Legal, he refused.

As a result, NSA canceled a bunch of unrelated billion dollar contracts that QWest was the top bidder for. And then the DoJ targeted him and prosecuted him and put him in prison for insider trading – on the theory that he knew of anticipated income from secret programs that QWest was planning for the government, while the public didn't because it was classified and he couldn't legally tell them, and then he bought or sold QWest stock knowing those things.

This CEO's name is Joseph P. Nacchio and TODAY he's still serving a trumped-up 6-year federal prison sentence today for quietly refusing an NSA demand to massively wiretap his customers."

-In the book called Three Felonies A Day, Boston civil rights lawyer Harvey Silverglate says that everyone in the US commits felonies everyday and if the government takes a dislike to you for any reason, they'll dig in and find a felony you're guilty of.

So, if the U.S. government really wants to cancel your U.S. passport, it can find some technicality for doing so...for anyone. All they need to do is dig and in a short while they can find an excuse. That, of course, is not unique to the U.S. government. Any government can revoke or cancel the passport of its citizens for any reason it sees fit.

"As a civil liberties matter, a government which has the ability to prosecute innocent citizens at will, is a government which has achieved the power that has characterized all tyrannical governments throughout history."

-Interview

There are so many laws in the United States that it is difficult keeping up with them all.

The Strangest Driving Laws of...

The UNITED STATES of AMERICA

Animals have right of way on Wisconsin roads

Police officers must honk their horns or flash their lights and wait at least three minutes before breaking up any romantic goings-on in Idaho

Drivers on mountains in Nebraska must take caution. There are no mountains in Nebraska!

Screaming your tyres in Derby, Kansas can result in a thirty day jail visit

Honking someone else's horn in University City, Missouri will result in a ticket

In Evanston, Illinois you can't change clothes in your car, unless a fine is involved and you use curtains

Running out of gas in Ohio will result in a ticket

In Connecticut, it's illegal to hunt from a car - even if it's painted bright orange

In New Jersey, if you're caught planting a tree in the road, you're in trouble

In Georgia, it's illegal to drive through playgrounds

In Florida you need a licence to ride a skateboard

In Sarasota, Florida you're only fined $75 for hitting a pedestrian

In Alabama it's legal to drive blindfolded

Tennessee & Mississippi both have laws that require female drivers to have a male flagger walking in front of the vehicle

In Texas you're required by law to have windshield wipers but not a windshield

In Denver, Colorado it's against the law to drive a black car on a Sunday

You can't keep tissues in the back of your car in Oklahoma

In Glendale, California it's illegal to jump from a car going over 65 mph

It's illegal for women to wear a housecoat while driving in California

In Nevada it is illegal to drive a camel on the highway

It's illegal in Eureka, California to use the road as a bed

Don't use your car to prove physical endurance in Oregon

In Montana, you are not allowed to leave a sheep unattended in your truck

You can't ride an ugly horse in Washington

It's legal to drive on the sidewalk in Oregon so long as you yield to pedestrians

...the IRS announced that it would block passports for 362,000 Americans who are late on their taxes.

We believe our own accounts with the IRS are in good order. But the “tax code” had 74,608 pages in 2016; there is plenty of room for disagreement, ambiguity, and interpretation.”

You combine this with the uber-surveillance by the NSA and other governmental agencies and you've got a system for more or less automatically accusing any US citizen of a felony.

[5] In an Emergency – you don't need to be a refugee out bag” with enough supplies to get them through a week.

13/31

via GIPHY

A second passport is “mobility insurance” for you and your family.

Regardless of how bad the economic or political situation might get in your home country, a second passport gives you the legal right to live and work elsewhere. It guarantees that once you “get out of Dodge”, you won’t have to live like a refugee.

via GIPHY

[6] Renunciation of American Citizenship

Drastic times call for drastic measures.

What if the United States start mandating sterilization of all white males? This happened in Nazi Germany under various ethnic initiatives . What if the elected representatives decide to seize the houses of all white farmers and hand over the property to the masses, like in South Africa this year? What are you going to do?

Do you really think that it cannot happen here? Really?

Have you been watching the news lately?

- Maxine Waters Demands Reparations
- White people banned from a lounge
- Farmers ordered to give food to the Government
- DOT Bans All Samsung Galaxy Note7 Phones

In all likelihood, you will need a second passport if you decide to take the drastic step of leaving the United States and never coming back. This would be the ever costly issue of renouncing your citizenship.

There are advantages of this. Not only are you safe from laws and regulations that might target you and your family. This could also give you huge tax and regulatory benefits if your home country burdens its citizens with suffocating and inescapable taxes...as the U.S. does.

[7] Your Children

Once you obtain a second passport, the political diversification benefits will last for generations. You will be able to pass on multiple citizenships to your future children and grandchildren. You can provide them with options.

I once had a coworker who managed to collect multiple social security numbers for his children..."just in case". Why NOT have multiple passports with multiple citizenships? If things get difficult or "hot" in one area, why not move to a cooler and calmer area? It offers you and provides you with options.

[8] TSA treats you differently

We, as Americans ASSUME that all people are treated equally by the TSA. You are in a line and everyone is groped. However that is not true in the least. People with diplomatic passports go through a different line and are treated differently, as are "protected" visitors who hold certain passports. People from certain nations are given "special" allowances.

Americans have accepted the fact that they are cattle to be groped and prodded by an all powerful United States government. Other nations do not feel this way. Try to grope and prod a citizen of Kuwait for instance, or Saudi Arabia. It will not happen without some serious discomfort. Thus, the TSA are trained to treat non-citizens differently than they treat Americans.

It is up to the reader to decide whether or not this treatment is better or worse than how they treat Americans. Though, I would be hard pressed to see if the treatment can be any worse...

TSA checking the groin area of a white American when the bulk of terror events have been by non-whites. That's the Obama presidency for you.

And, let's see how they treat women...

Yep. She most certainly looks like a terrorist. I am sure that she needed a full cavity body check. You know, just to be sure.

Sometimes the women are set aside for (ahem) “special” screening procedures...

Women are often pulled aside for more invasive screening procedures. These procedures all take time and in the United States, can result in three to four hour delays while you stand in a line. This is hardly freedom, people.

Not Easy, but Necessary

All this being stated, obtaining a second passport is not necessarily easy. You need to prepare, plan and implement. Never the less, I personally believe that it is one of the most important things that we need to do is to prepare options for yourselves in the event that things become supremely uncomfortable for us.

Today, the United States government is the biggest threat to your personal freedom and financial security.

I need to tell you that it is getting worse with each day. Have you been paying attention to the news lately? There is an entire army of “deep state” employees that are hell-bent on increasing their size and scope of their madidate. This is a power projection, and you the citizen are the enemy. You can see this in how they treat you and how they refer to you with dismissive smirks and calling you names such as “deplorable”, and “white trash”.

Yah. Do you think that they give a “rats ass” about you or your family?

Today, the United States is completely out of control. It is running on autopilot by a huge engaged bureaucracy that is controlled by senile old men and women who enjoy their lavish dinners on fine china. The risks that the status quo poses are only growing. This, combined with other trends, such as skyrocketing government debt will necessitate increasingly drastic action.

At some point in time, politicians will inevitably try to further restrict the movement of citizens in a desperate attempt to squeeze them for every penny possible.

Conclusions

Having a second passport is necessary when your home government becomes unstable.

If you think that there is a chance that your government will become more authoritarian, or unstable, it would be beneficial for you to obtain a second passport for you and your family. It will provide you with options.

"Authoritarianism is a form of government characterized by strong central power and limited political freedoms."

-Wikipedia

Consider this while Democrats are calling for open attacks on Trump supporters, advocate using weapons to kill people, sponsoring riots, and Doxing people who do not fit into their established political belief structures.

Found at a Starbucks in downtown Denver

Mainstream institutionalized nonsense, this time it is about white racism. It sickens me. Simply because it just isn't true. But I'll tell you what, you want to call me a racist, fine. I will start acting as one. Which is, I am sure, what the actual intention of all this is.

Take Aways

- While it is important to have your “papers” on you, you also need to have “global papers”, if you intend to leave your nation.
- Being prudent is a virtue.
- The key about being the head of the family is to care for, and protect the well-being of the family. Often this means planning and foresight.

- A second passport enables a person to have a second identity in a second place.

FAQ

Q: Is a second passport necessary?

A: No. If you have no intention on exiting your nation, then a second passport is not necessary.

Q: What is the primary benefit of a second passport?

A: It provides you and your family options, if for some reason, it becomes dangerous to live inside your nation. History has shown us that it is often dangerous to stay in a nation when government failures become large and dangerous. That is why there are refugees, and illegal migrants. In the event that you need to leave the nation, it is best you be prepared to do so.

Q: Is it easy to get a second passport?

A: No, but it can be done. For instance, you can become a resident and citizen of Fiji by simply living there for five years. Other nations require investments in money.

Q: Why leave the United States?

A: All nations evolve and change. If you like the change and the direction that it is leading to, then by all means stay and enjoy the paradise that you have been promised. If you feel uncomfortable with the changes, then it just might be in your best interests to move to someplace more comfortable for you. You do not need to live a life of trouble.

Finally Why...?

Well, other nations are different. I think that slim and healthy girls are attractive. I hate the portrayals of large-asses being jiggled around by obese black women as a reflection of the “new” America. I don’t like the in-your-face rudeness, and the constant belittling of hard-working men by welfare mothers with pink hair. You know, guys... You don’t have to take it. You can leave and go to a place where the women are better...

Like Communist China for example.

Video Player

0:00 / 0:17

00:00

00:00

00:17

Video Player

0:00 / 0:14

00:00

00:00

00:14

Video Player

0:00 / 0:15

00:00

00:00

00:15

Posts Regarding Life and Contentment

Here are some other similar posts on this venue. If you enjoyed this post, you might like these posts as well. These posts tend to discuss growing up in America. Often, I like to compare my life in America with the society within communist China. As there are some really stark differences between the two.

The Fiasco of the Reengineering of the Common Tomato

This is the sad, sad story about how the wonderful and tasty tomato was reengineered to be “better”. It was made better to ship. Better to sell. Better to store. However, there was one thing missing. No one paid any attention to taste, which is why it tastes like a cardboard shipping box today.

Mad Scientist Explorations

Here we discuss what it was like growing up as a boy in the 1960's and the 1970's and the people, things, and adventures that inspired us. As such, we explore how the independence of growing up enabled us to cope through life when we got older.

The Gorilla Cage in the Basement

When I was a small boy, I used to play in the abandoned buildings nearby. Here is a story about one of the objects that lay hidden inside one of those buildings and the possible mysteries that it held. As a child we thought it was a gorilla cage, now as an adult, I am not so sure...

The Pleasures of Fresh Baked Bread with Butter

One of the things that I have come to miss, since I moved to China, is fresh hard crusty rolls with full salted butter. The Chinese are not really fans of crusty bread. They like sweets and sponge cakes. Here I describe something that is close to me; not appreciating what you have right in front of you.

What Work was Like in the 1960's and 1970's.

When people go to work today, they find that there are all kinds of rules and regulations. It is for diversity, safety, inclusion, and improvement in a new progressive world. Well, here is what work was like before it became a sterile progressive testing ground for the New World Order.

Learning during my 1970s High School years

Here is a pretty long post on what it was like to go to elementary school in the 1960's, and then attend high school in the 1970's. I graduated in 1977, and that my friend is exactly the target date for the famous movie "Dazed and Confused". Here is the real deal what it was like.

Some True Stories of Cat Heaven

Being in MAJestic taught me many things. One of which was an intimate understanding of Heaven and other "spiritual" things relative to quanta entanglements. Here I discuss what it is like to have a beloved animal (cat) dies and what actually happens to them and why.

Life Lessons from Working within the Corporate Dream – 1

After I was trained by MAJestic, I was left to fend for myself in Corporate America. It was a hellish existence. As such, I learned many lessons concerning behavior and the ultimate impact that it holds on our families, our friends, our loved ones, and our very lives. Here are my commentaries.

Life Lessons from Working within the Corporate Dream – 2

This is part two of the two part section. There is quite a lot of information to impart. Stories are told, and experiences relayed. Honestly working in corporate America in the 1980's, through the new century really sucked. It was harsh on everyone except the owners of the companies.

How to Build Up Your Life from Nothing.

This is for all those young men who are just leaving school and trying hard to build up their life. You can do it. Here are my thoughts and advice for a young man who is encountering that most difficult of challenges; carving your life out in the wilds of the world.

Allow your Children to Play and Grow (Part 1)

I am horrified, just horrified, that parents do not allow their children to play, roam and explore on their own. It has created a society of pampered fearful children. Here I discuss this in terms of what I know. This is very non-PC and might offend the more liberal readers out there.

Allow your Children to Play and Grow (Part 2)

This is the second part of my rant about permitting children to play, explore and have fun. Everyone, the odds that some stranger will abduct your child is very small. Most people who do this are family friends and neighbors. Stop being so fearful. It harms the development of your child.

Ode to Diabolical Cretin John McCain

Well, that evil son-of-a-bitch is finally dead. If his grave wasn't so far away, I go there and dance on top of it. This guy has spent his life backstabbing people, hurting people, concocting wars, and doing everything in his power to disrupt the lives of people. Good fucking riddance.

The Song "Baby Got Back" Translated into Latin

Here is a fun post. The song "Baby Got Back" is translated into Latin and then back again. I have to tell you that it is indeed hilarious. Rebecca, ecce! tantae clunes isti sunt! (Rebecca, behold! Such large buttocks she has!) Anyways, it's just all fun and games. Enjoy.

More Posts about Life

I have broken apart some other posts. They can best be classified about ones actions as they contribute to happiness and life. They are a little different, in subtle ways.

On Being an Older Gent

Here are my thoughts on growing old as a man. The truth is that the life that I expected to have as I was growing up never materialized. Instead, something else manifested. My life today is nothing compared to what I thought it would be. For my illusions were created by American media.

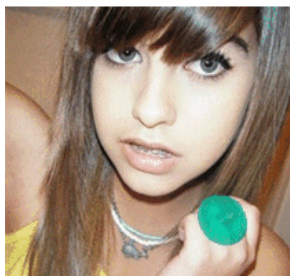

Calexit and the American Civil War

This is a pretty detailed look at the causes of the American civil war, and why it wasn't about slavery. We look at the rewriting of history by the internet, and the efforts that President Obama took to keep California intact so that the Democrats could maintain political power and control.

Why an American man should leave America and Travel

All people should get up off their duff and go forth and Travel. However, this is most especially true for American men. The United States has become a crucible of PC progressive realities that attack and depreciate American men. Go out, young man, see the world as it really is!

The Amazing Bremelanotide PT-141

Forget Viagra, and all those other ED medications. This is the real deal. This little baby causes humans to go into heat. It interacts with the brain and sets up feelings of intense arousal on both men and women. It turns people into 16 year olds. As such it is banned in the USA by the FDA.

Bronco Billy and the 25th Law of Power

Bronco Billy is a fictional movie starring Clint Eastwood. The movie depicts the life of a man who decides to change his life and go ahead and do what he has always dreamed of doing. He goes out and becomes his dream. There are lessons here for all of us, we only need listen.

The r/K Selection Theory applied to American Politics

The r/K theory is a pretty well-known theory on animal behavior. It simply states that animals behave as they need to based on the scarcity of resources. Here, we argue that it can be applied to why humans follow different political philosophies. Especially in American politics.

How they get away with it

Ten years ago, Bankers committed fraud in Wall Street that just about devastated the nation. Earlier, we had the S&L fiasco, the nightmare with penny stocks, and now the grand wholesale treason with the selling of Top Secrets to a foreign nation. This is how they get away with it.

The Line in the Sand – Now What?

It's the same story. Just vote for us, and we will correct everything. Yet, nothing ever happens. You know, boys and girls, this old "song and dance" can only be maintained for so long. Eventually it will fracture, and people will no longer rely on elections to institute change...

The importance of having a second passport.

So President Trump is building a wall to protect Americans. Hum. Where have I heard that before? Oh yes, in Germany right when they were making the wall that separated Berlin. Walls serve two purposes; they keep people out, but they also keep people in. Be careful what you wish for.

How Rocket Scientists Build Paper Airplanes

This is a tale of what me and my classmates used to do when we were young Aerospace Engineering students at the university. We would design paper airplanes and shoot them down with bottle rockets. Here is just a fun little exercise down "memory lane". Enjoy.

What is Snopes.com and can it be Trusted?

Snopes is a “fact check” website that is fully funded by the oligarchy. It is used to “shout down” any narratives that does not support the rich and powerful, and politically connected globally. Here we discuss the organization, who they are and what they represent.

Today America Taxes it's Expats without Representation.

This is a sad state of affairs. Americans who reside outside of the United States now have to pay American taxes, even though they have no representation in Congress. As I recall this was one of the reasons for the American cry for independence in 1776.

What life is like inside the ADC Prison in Arkansas

This post discusses what life is like in a hard labor prison in Southern Arkansas. We discuss hoe squads, food, the hole, commissary, dress, fashion, homosexual culture, prison gangs, murders, relationships and other aspects of life when you are sentenced to “Hard Time”.

The Hazing of New Employees – A Lost Tradition

Up until the 1980's all companies would haze new employees. Today, we live in a world regulated by the government and policed by Human Resources. We forget how things used to be just a handful of decades ago. Here is my narrative when I started to work.

How to Build a Gallows and a Hangman's Noose

The United States is entering a period of strife. There will be violence. There will be discord and discomfort. It will be an ugly time. There will be winners and losers. It will be painful for the losers, and the victor will need build a gallows. This is how to do so and why it is needed.

Stories that Inspired Me

Here are reprints in full text of stories that inspired me, but that are nearly impossible to find in China. I place them here as sort of a personal library that I can use for inspiration. The reader is welcome to come and enjoy a read or two as well.

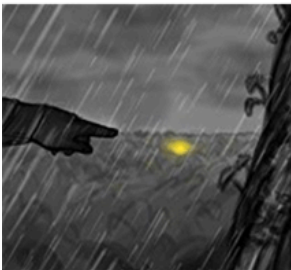

Kaleidoscope (Full Text) A Story by Ray Bradbury

This is the full text of a short story by Ray Bradbury. It concerns the final moments of a crew of spacemen as they drift about in space helplessly after their space rocket explodes. They know that no one can help them as they await their final moments tumbling through space...

Here There Be Tygers by Ray Bradberry

When I was younger I used to read science fiction stories for pleasure. They filled my minds with adventure and passion. One of my favorite authors was Ray Bradberry and here is a complete reprint of one of the stories that has influenced me to be the man that I am today. Enjoy.

The Long Rain (Full Text) by Ray Bradberry

This is the full text of a most excellent science fiction story. It concerns a group of survivors from a crashed spaceship stranded on a Hellish rainy planet; the tropical cloud-covered Venus. They survive the crash, but have to battle the forces of nature and their own passions.

The Fog Horn (Full Text) by Ray Bradberry

Here is a story about the emotions of being the last of your kind. This story is one that influenced me when I was a young boy in the 1970's and continues to haunt me to this day. All of us are human. We all feel emotions and passions. They drive us to accomplish or destroy. It's our choice.

The Rocket (Full Text) A Story by Ray Bradberry

This is a nice short story about a poor man who dreamed about flying into space. No matter how hard he worked, and no matter how much he saved, he was never able to provide for that dream. Then one day, when he was asked to scrap a test rocket, a thought came to mind...

Dark They Were and Golden Eyed (Full Text) by Ray Bradberry

This is the complete short story by Ray Bradberry. It is a story about change and adaptation. I first read this story in my teens and it influenced me to live the life that I am currently living. It is a great read.

Articles & Links

- You can start reading the articles by going HERE.
- You can visit the Index Page HERE to explore by article subject.
- You can also ask the author some questions. You can go HERE to find out how to go about this.
- You can find out more about the author HERE.
- If you have concerns or complaints, you can go HERE.
- If you want to make a donation, you can go HERE.

Notes

1. Compiled 10JUL18
2. Completed 15JUL18.
3. SEO 15JUL18.
4. Swapped out the embeds and changed the Links. 29SEP18.