This post talks about the world going to shit fast, and our frustrations and fears that it is beyond our control. That is not true at all. In fact, we are in control of it, it just looks like we are powerless.

Back in 2016, grassroots white Americans voted anti-establishment Trump into the Oval Office. For the first time, long-held ideals of American democracy have been challenged. Pledging to "Make America Great Again", Trump's solution was straightforward – waging trade wars on friends and foes alike; withdrawing the country from global pacts, and avoiding responsibilities for international affairs.

The consequences have been catastrophic. Populist policies originally introduced to woo American voters were ironically implemented at the sacrifice of blue-collar workers – the same group of people who supported Trump in 2016. Establishment forces are also fed up with Trump's "madness."

The 2020 election was more a fight between Biden-represented American institutions and anti-establishment forces with Trump being the spokesperson than a partisan battle. Biden, although a Democrat, has high hopes pinned on him by establishment politicians of both parties to bring the United States back to the right track. This requires the new president to restore multilateralism, intensify cooperation with allies, and mend ties with China.

-When will U.S. anti-China hysteria come to an end?

It all began with a comment;

"...our consciousness."

It appears that my consciousness is being overwhelmed (or over-ruled) by the 99.99% who believe that shit on "TV" or "News".

Again:

Other than your prayers to nowhere, is there simply a method to say "I've had enough of this charade"? Like "Help Mr. Wizard... I don't wanna be a peon human anymore." Suicide, is that it? Seriously, what the fuck am I learning these days (in the "sentience nursery") that I had not known years and years ago?

And I responded with...

In reply to DSKlausler.

I want to take more time to answering your question. Unfortunately I was busy with personal things and all I could do was throw off a quick response. But I have been thinking about you and your last few emails. I can sense a great deal of frustration and angst. And I do understand it.

Do not be under the impression that the reality that you see is ruled and controlled by the masses...the manipulated masses. That point was made very clearly by the base commander when I joined MAJestic. Most of the world is populated by sheeple. Or just folk that haven't a clue, and who graze upon the lands in a reactive way. Only a handful of people are actually really in control. these are the cowboys, the unappreciated and the under-deserved. You never hear about them, because they are not attracted to fame and fortune.

Look at 2020. Was a fucking year, right?

During the entire year, just about every other article in the United States, mainstream Alt-Right and Alt-left was all HATE CHINA! and it was non-stop. By the end of the year, the 330 million American either totally despised China, (and wanted to go to war) or were guardedly neutral. No one put up any kind of a fight when Trump started kicking the Chinese out of America, banning things, and launched a huge flotilla to attack China.

330 million people HATING China. COVID-19B launched as part of a 8-strain biological attack, a military flotilla...

...but no war happened. Donald Trump and Mike Pompeo were kicked out of office.

The American economy is in shambles. And China is bigger and stronger than ever. Not only that, but it has grown and the world is now turning it's back on the broken promises of Trump and look at the ruins of the United States... with incredulity and disgust.

Do you actually believe that this is the result of the combined HATRED of 330 million people? Or, maybe that a MAJestic operator that happened to live inside China had a Prayer Affirmation Campaign that said...

[1] Donald Trump will not be able to harm China.

[2] All American military ventures to China will fail.

[3] The harder that Donald Trump tries to break or destroy China, the same and equal effect will hit him and his family personally.

[4] Any WMD's implemented by America to hurt China will boomerang to the USA a hundred-fold and more.

And yeah. It doesn't make sense. Except it does if you read everything that I am saying.

COVID-19B deaths China = 4634

COVID-19A deaths USA = 397,600

As far as you and other MM readers. I will not allow any harm to come to you all. Not if I can help it. You all are true believers. So relish in that.

[5] Followers of MM are protected with the same kind of protections that I utilize for my family provided that it is their desire.

If the shadow people thoughts have an equal power as a single person, and there at 330,000,000 of them then it is logical to say (just what you stated) that the tyranny of the majority will define the reality that we all inhabit. After all, that is the primary theory behind propaganda. But I argue quite differently. It is the strength of the thoughts of an individual consciousness that controls the reality that maintains the power to shape and shift the reality that surrounds us.

If you do not understand, I will provide more information.

After the response above, I have received some positive responses.

First from ULTan

I get it, Mr Man. Couldnt be clearer. If folks read your Maj and MWI sections thoroughly, all these concerns are addressed.

I should add again, though, if I may and IMHO: Stop watching MMMedia whatever ya'll do. And don't fight the masses head on. Lie low and observe their madness. Learn from it. Is it something that's happened to them? Or does it just reveal what they really were all along. (Quantum shadows? Existing only to teach u personally? Or is that too far out for ya?) Do not get dragged into arguments with zombified and terrified normies over masks, rules, etc. Work out a method of avoidance. They've been driven crazy by Wizards at the top of the pile. Their pile, that is. Avoid this at all costs. Surf that wave, look after your loved ones and especially pets, other critters nearby, too. They need you at this time of year.

Trust in the Plan. And I don't mean the Qtard one.

How is that working out for ya'll by the way? Sealed indictments opened yet? Mass paedophilia arrests? America great again, yet?

Trump the saviour avatar?

Ehhh, not really.

Be more careful what you read and follow next time.

And if you were a Qfan and are still sane: please read about how cults work. Start with Jim Jones or the Moonies. Pentacostals, too.

Scary stuff. I assure you.

And thanks again, Mr Man. My cats— each and every one of 'em— say a bigggg hi!

Stay safe,
U.

And again from the original poster, Mr. DSKlausler...

In reply to congjing_yu. Thanks for that... and I DO read everything you publish.

It just doesn't seem right... can't the simple folks just be left alone to live and grow at their own pace without a bunch of twits ruining the world?

I will give the affirmation deal another go.

Just switch me to the world line where people aren't so stupid.

Let's look at the situation

The world seems to be going to Hell. The “news”, the media, the people in Charge and everyone around you are seemingly idiots. “What is their malfunction”, you ask. And you are in fear for your life, your livelihood, and your family. Not to mention your community and your nation.

It doesn't matter what side of the American Political Spectrum you reside on, everything is seemingly going to Hell straight away. You yearn for stability, a return to quieter and more peaceful times, and management by reason and reasonable people. And when you read the “news” it only amplifies your concerns...

That last link reflects the concerns of many, many Americans (and perhaps many people around the world). “Give me something. Give me hope. Give me Xanax.” Seemingly the population is ready for change...

...and this is a dangerous time. Eh?

Because Change is always uncomfortable, and can usher in a wonderful life, or an indescribably worse one. As we used to say in the United States “jump from the frying pan into the fire”.

To quote from the article;

Can't quite put my finger on why. Oh yes, I just flipped on 'MSDNC' and opened my Failing New York Times, and now I remember: because I've been watching my country set ablaze, and Donald Trump and his faithful Trumpsters are holding the flamethrower.

By now, we've all sat rapt and horrified, watching the highlights: the MAGA-bots following the Dear Leader's call to riot, invading the Capitol building, smashing windows, battering down doors, stealing the Speaker's lectern and literally covering the floors in shit, for fans of too-on-the-nose metaphors. They accosted police, threatened to hang the traitor Mike Pence and trotted through the legislative chamber in full tactical gear holding flex cuffs in the hope of taking hostages. (Possibly before executing them: someone did erect a gallows on the grounds.) Five people died. Four of them Trump supporters, one of them a Capitol Police officer, hit in the head with a fire extinguisher.

I doubt Mr Trump wanted anybody to die. He just wanted to put a good scare into Congress, while trying to overturn a free and fair election, the very bedrock without which the whole system collapses. So nothing to see here, folks. Let's talk about what really matters, Trump getting banned from Twitter!

If you haven't gathered by now, I've had it. Plenty of us have always been Trump skeptical; my skepticism dates all the way back to 1999. But it's time for his acolytes to reckon with the cancer that they've let metastasize. I haven't been terribly subtle, so let's just go ahead and lay it out: Donald Trump is a sociopathic cult leader, a moral black hole with a weird tan and a combover. Yes,

I know it's old hat to make fun of his hair, but his confidantes have told me it wounds him. And I just want him to hurt like he's hurt America.

So now that we're coming to the conclusion of DJT's first and only term – which has ended in impeachment and could include imprisonment – it's time to legacy-assess the effects of Trumpism. As several have already noted, after everything from Trump's social-media meltdowns to him falling asleep at the wheel during the deadliest pandemic in a century, Americans are now poorer, angrier, dumber, meaner, more divided, sicker (both physically and mentally) and deader than they were four years ago. But how 'bout that wall?! (The one that's one-fourth of the way built, that Mexico didn't pay for.)

I wasn't a big fan of The Establishment, either. But we threw them over for this?

I don't detest Trumpsters: that would leave me hating roughly 60 percent of my friends and 80 percent of my family. But I would like to know how so many good people of my acquaintance could be so blind to the glaringly obvious. You edit American Greatness, one of the house organs of the movement. But by my lights, America isn't looking so great right now. Feels more like American Mediocrity. Or America Needs Improvement. Lots of it. Give me something. Give me hope. Give me Xanax. Give me shelter from the storm. Or I might do something truly unthinkable, like quote Dylan lyrics in print. Nobody wants to see that.

Ah...

Pointing a nice big finger on a figurehead. Ah. It's all Trump's fault, and it's his followers fault...

No it's not.

It's the way that governments crumble. They start young and youthful, they go through a "middle age", they get old, and senile, and then they die. We are watching America die, and no singular person is at fault. So stop blaming the person at the helm. A doomed ship is going to hit that iceberg, and while the captain might be able to steer the ship somewhat, if he doesn't hit THAT particular iceberg, he will hit the next one instead, or the one after that. A doomed ship is a doomed ship.

And this fact is recognizable. From Chris Buskirk...

The one thing I've noticed over the past five years is that the only people more consumed by the person of Donald Trump – from his psychology to his physiognomy – than the most diehard, plan-trusting, steal-stopping, Trump super-fans are his obsessive detractors. However large the number of actual Trump cultists is, the anti-Trump cult is orders of magnitude larger, more intense and more powerful. That's not surprising, because Trump's rise to power is less a direct threat to the established order and the ruling class it serves than it is an indictment of their failure. Of course they react with visceral hatred. Perhaps we can stipulate that a country with a healthy culture and competent, trusted (and trustworthy) institutions would not have elected Donald Trump as president. Yet, Donald Trump has received more votes than any other Republican ever. Twice.

That suggests two possibilities. Either half the country is comprised of Deplorables, reprobates, morons or sociopaths (I'd love to see the Venn Diagram). Or something has gone quite wrong and America isn't working very well for a lot of Americans.

Option one is the default answer of the ruling class and its aspirants and retainers. But in fact something has gone wrong. Late-stage liberalism isn't able to keep its promises. That's why both Trump and Bernie Sanders were so popular. That's why there is so much social and political conflict. And Trump-obsession of any kind is a distraction and a coping mechanism.

Over the past 50 years median real wages have barely budged. Worse, the growth that has occurred has all happened at the top. The top 10 percent did OK, the top 1 percent did very well and the top 0.1 percent blasted way ahead of everyone else. Everyone except the very top fell a little behind the group ahead of them, but the group below the top 10 percent fell further and faster. This made it harder to get married, buy a house and raise a family. The cost of being middle class kept rising faster than middle class wages. That created – and continues to create – a lot of people who are socially and economically precarious.

You say 'I wasn't a big fan of The Establishment, either. But we threw them over for this?' Yes. Why? Because there wasn't a better option. Look at the group of Republicans running in 2016 and Democrats in 2020. All of them are standard-bearers for a shattered consensus. And there are a lot of mediocrities and has-beens. Biden himself is a retread of a retread. The 'uniparty' that runs the country either doesn't know or doesn't care that for a lot of people the American Dream is dead. In the cohort of people born in 1940, about 95 percent did better economically than their parents. For the cohort born in 1980 (border line millennials), only about 40 percent of those raised in middle-class families are better off than their parents at the same stage of life. These are people who were raised mostly by boomer parents to follow the program that worked so well for them: go to college, maybe grad school, trust the plan and you'll have a life filled with grilling and long weekends. But it hasn't worked out that way. It's been tough. And for those that didn't go to college, it's even worse.

What do we do about it? That's a big subject. But Trump offered answers in 2016 that made some intuitive sense and resonated with a lot of people. We sent our factories and their high-paying jobs to China? Let's bring them back. Mass immigration undercuts wages? Let's slow it down. The ruling class is corrupt, self-serving and doesn't give a damn about anyone else? Let's take the country back from them.

Trump accomplished some of the good things he was talking about back then, though not as many as I would have liked. But he was often stymied by a combination of internal incoherence and external opposition. In 2017, Trump had both unified government and the most political capital to spend. The fact that the Republican party's primary goal and signature achievement was a reduction in corporate tax rates says something about the depth of institutional decay that Trump had taken advantage of when he sought the nomination.

Yes. There's all sorts of things wrong with America right now. It's a fucking mess. It really is. And the people want out of this mess. And the people in control aren't really up to taking on that job. They really aren't.

The uniparty is in control and they are not what the nation needs. It needs leadership, understanding, and merit-based managers who know how systems work and how to clean out the entire clogged up and gutted system.

I'm going to use a Chinese reference, that most Americans are unaware of...

America needs a Mr. Deng-style revolution.

In the 1980's Mr. Deng single-handedly implemented American-style Reaganomics to China. He got rid of hard-core Marxism. He tossed much of the state-mandated industries and implemented private controls. He built cities, disposed political corruptions and changed China from a hard-core Marxist Communist nation to something else.

He changed it to a single-party, traditional values, merit-based system that serves the people, and that is policed by harsh systems to makes sure that the ruling class does not move away from these values.

Ok. Let's not get too bogged down here.

China changed, and it was hard-core Marxist. America too can change. In fact, if America is what everyone says it is, whether a "democracy" or a "republic", it should be rather easy to change. But it's not. You know it. I know it. And it has corrupted well past the point of band-aides and minor surgery. One half of the nation wants to burn it down, and the other half wants to restructure it into something really different.

And thus the fear.

Elements on both the LEFT and the RIGHT are scaring the living daylights out of everyone. And those in charge of the United States government today are not reassuring anyone.

Thus the feeling of helplessness.

Proactive actions

But, if you read the MM writings you realize that your reality is not what it appears to be.

We "share" an apparent reality, but we are not part of what we observe.

We are consciousness. And we are moving world-line to world-line based on our thoughts. And it is important that we NOT get too hung up on what we observe around us. For that too will alter our thoughts. What we are observing is the world-line template. Not our individual world-line.

Do not get too caught up about that looming iceberg ahead of you. Navigate round it. And then when you see another iceberg behind it, navigate around it as well. In fact, maybe you all need to start sailing South as fast as you can to get out of the looming ice pack that is up ahead. You see the warning signs, start the navigation.

Make sure that you have lookouts posted everywhere and that they are rested and alert. Make sure that the engineers and the folk loading coal into the furnaces are up to the job and in control. Make sure that you go to the map room and navigate a path out of the ice floes. Make sure that you radio your concerns and telegraph your direction changes.

Take proactive steps.

You have control

In my real world example that I gave at the top of the post, I referenced my personal affirmation campaign that I implemented back at the start of the year when the COVID-19 outbreak hit.

Up until that time, I kept on believing that Trump wanted to work with China on trade for the mutual benefit of all. I intentionally ignored the hard facts, the neocons in his administrations and his other actions. I wanted to believe. I really wanted to believe. I wanted what I hoped to happen to actually happen and I ignored the facts.

But when people all around me started having seizures, my family became locked inside the house, and the Chinese military went DEFCON ONE, I no longer could live the lie. Donald Trump declared full-spectrum war against China and I was sitting smack dab on the bullseye at ground zero.

Ground zero.

And all the neocon publications were talking about how the USA was going to win a “hot war” against China and invade the South China Sea...

...my home.

I had to do something.

Affirmation Prayer Campaigns

Normally my prayer affirmations are associated with myself. I rarely refer to others and certainly not to Geo-political, or national politics. Those things are like oil and water in regards to my affirmations. I just don't put affirmations where a preferential presidential candidate wins over another. Instead, my affirmations are about me.

But this WAS about me.

It Was about my FAMILY, and my FRIENDS.

And unlike most Americans, this was not some faraway place that lies at the other end of the world. It is up front and close sitting smack dab in my front yard. i had to do something.

And it seemed like an up-hill battle.

The Fire Hose of Disinformation

Donald Trump and Mike Pompeo turned on the “fire hose of disinformation” against China and it was ridiculous. China could have saved a baby from a burning building and the “news” would report that the Chinese were burning babies.

- Analysis: Pompeo keeps up anti-China campaign overseas

- The CIA’s Murderous Practices, Disinformation Campaigns
- Decoding America’s anti-China Messaging Campaign – CGTN
- When will U.S. anti-China hysteria come to an end? – CGTN

Anyways, after a full year of this, most Americans consider China evil and are willing and ready to go to war for all the same old reasons and excuses.

330 million people.

And I am but one lone singular person.

What can I do?

You run a Affirmation / Prayer Campaign and you address your fears. You do it to the exclusion of everything else. That’s what you do.

And that is what I did.

My Prayer Affirmation Campaign

Well, I did indeed include personal things, and it was a long slug-fest, I’ll tell you what. But it did work. When I started the campaign, Trump was at the top of his game. He successfully launched numerous events, wars and attacks upon China. six biological weapons designed to destroy crops and livestock. Some with drones carrying vials of toxic bio-weapons to far distant farms. A “color revolution” in Hong Kong, and insurgents flowing into Xinjiang to create another Syria war there. Not to mention the COVID-19B which targeted MYSELF AND MY FAMILY.

Fuck him!

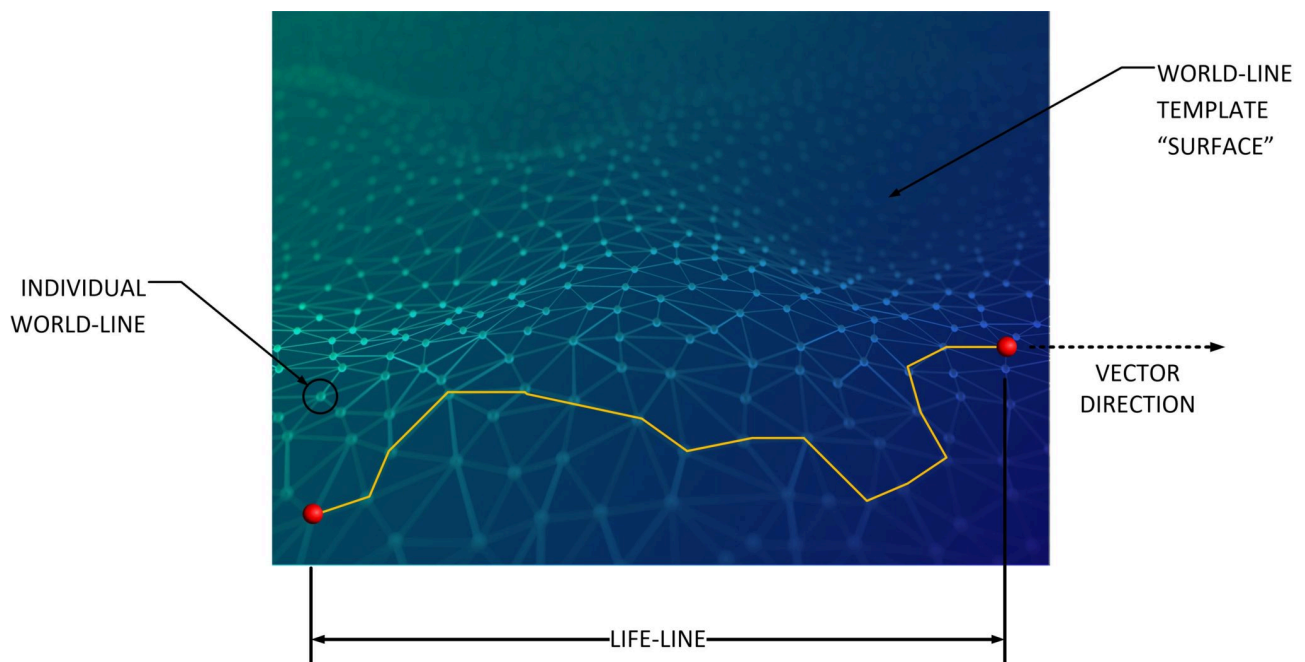

So I launched my own prayer campaign. So if he wanted to be “top dog”, let’s see who’s boss, eh?

At the time I began, everything was pro-Trump and his plans were working out more or less. He was on the verge of creating strife, conflict, starvation, a bio-weapon war, and a future of decades of warfare on the other end of the globe.

So, here's my relevant affirmations.

- [1] Donald Trump will not be able to harm China.
- [2] All American military ventures to China will fail.
- [3] The harder that Donald Trump tries to break or destroy China, the same and equal effect will hit him and his family personally.
- [4] Any WMD's implemented by America to hurt China will boomerang to the USA a hundred-fold and more.

While he tried to implement policies that would harm me and my family personally, my affirmation campaign was not personal. It was defensive and proactive. He and his minions will be unable to harm me, my family, my friends or China. If he tried, it would all come back to hit him.

Some quick terms on how the MWI operates.

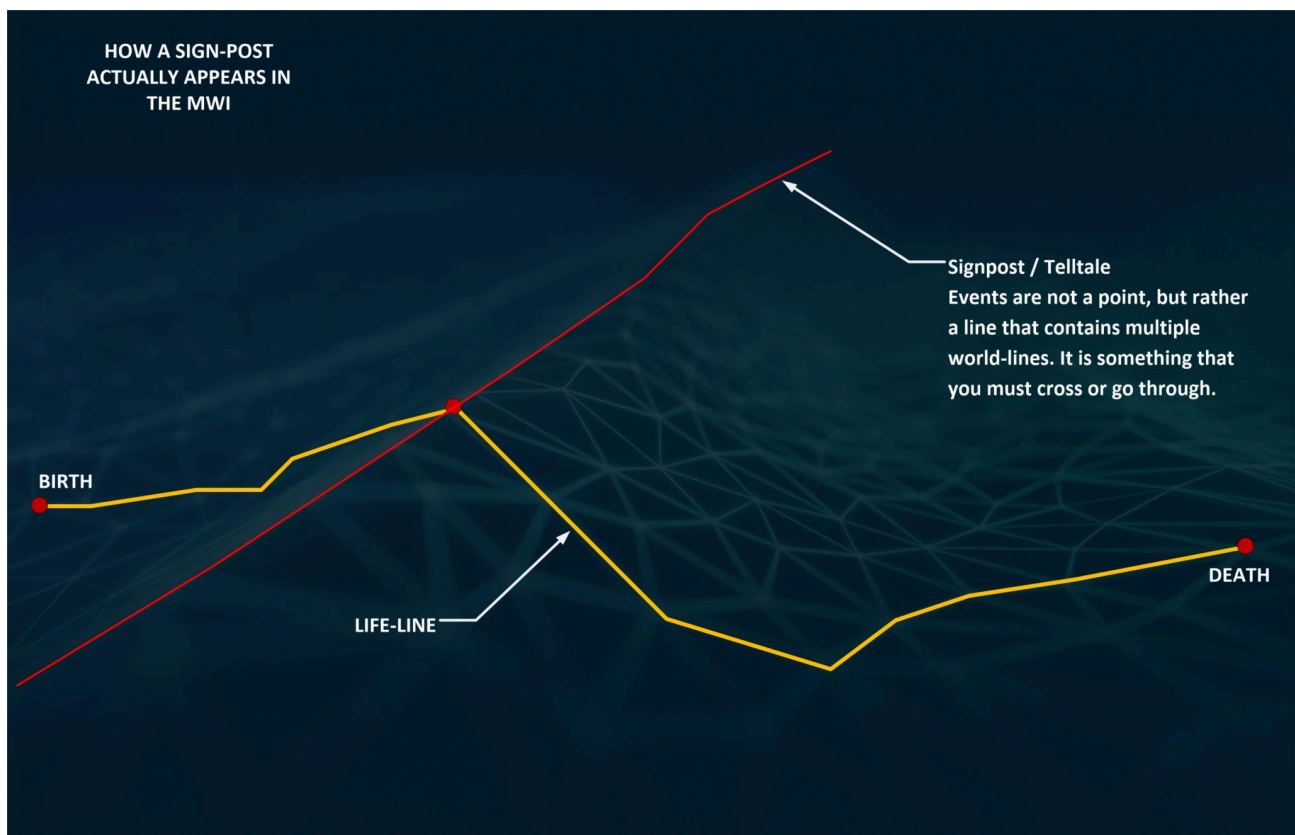

And what?

With 330 million people seething at rage at China, and all those thoughts, anger and emotion, it was my affirmation campaign that turned things around. At least in my neck of the woods, things have become quite the opposite of what was intended.

The point here is that I was able to stop a war in China. And, by extension, world war III ... nuclear war on American soil.

One person has the power to change their life. That is you. Do your prayer affirmation campaign religiously. You, it's up to you, to make the world surrounding you a better place to live. Do not let the “world-line template” alter the fears you generate while in a world-line that lies upon that template.

If you are filled with dread or fear, that can act as a “signpost” to push you to action. You need to hop onto your affirmation campaigns STAT! and perform corrective measures. Concentrate on your personal life, our family and friends. Do not... DO NOT... put anything that you read about in the “news” in your affirmations. That’s alike a dog chasing it’s tail. You’ll go around and around in circles . You will go no where. Focus on you and your family.

What ever you do, run your campaign on a PERSONAL note.

Do not implement things that you read about in the “news”, or your favorite political leanings or anything like that. Those are distractions and they WILL take away from your core desires as specified within your affirmation campaign.

Trust me on this.

The ONLY reason why I included Mr. Trump in my affirmations was because he had targeted me with his war machine. Other than that, he was no where to be seen anywhere in my campaigns.

But how does it work?

The world that you observe is not real. What you are observing is the highest likely probability at any given moment on a world-line.

You are viewing the “world-line template surface”.

You are not viewing your particular, individual, world-line.

That shrub over there looks that way because that is the highest probability of it's appearance at that moment of time...

...as VIEWED by your consciousness within that particular world-line.

That person over there is stopping to tie their shoe because that is that highest probability of occurrence at that moment in time...

...as VIEWED by your consciousness within that particular world-line.

The President on television is making a speech raising taxes because that is the highest probability of occurrence at that moment of time...

...as VIEWED by your consciousness within that particular world-line.

You CANNOT change them.

All you can change is your navigation to other world-lines.

So do not worry about what the world-line template looks like, or appears to be. That is, unless there is a guy lunging at you with a knife or some other dangerous event. And that is a special event, just like I am describing herein.

What I did...

I conducted a slide.

I slid the world-line, and carried a lot of people with me, to a new world-line template where I am, and my family, are safe. It is a world-line that avoids a Trump / Pompeo created nuclear war, and one where the human species can continue to develop their individual sentience's while avoiding some truly horrific consequences.

No. I'm not perfect.

Trump did launch the COVID-19 bio-weapons genie and it is out of the bottle. The Chinese stopped the two successive subsequent follow-up bio-weapons attacks (more on them later), but we all still will need to deal with this mess that he got us all involved in.

I'm good. But, I'm not God.

Conclusions

At a time when an entire nation of 330 million people were ready to go to war with China, and attack my front yard, I adjusted my affirmation campaign for a different result.

I was successful.

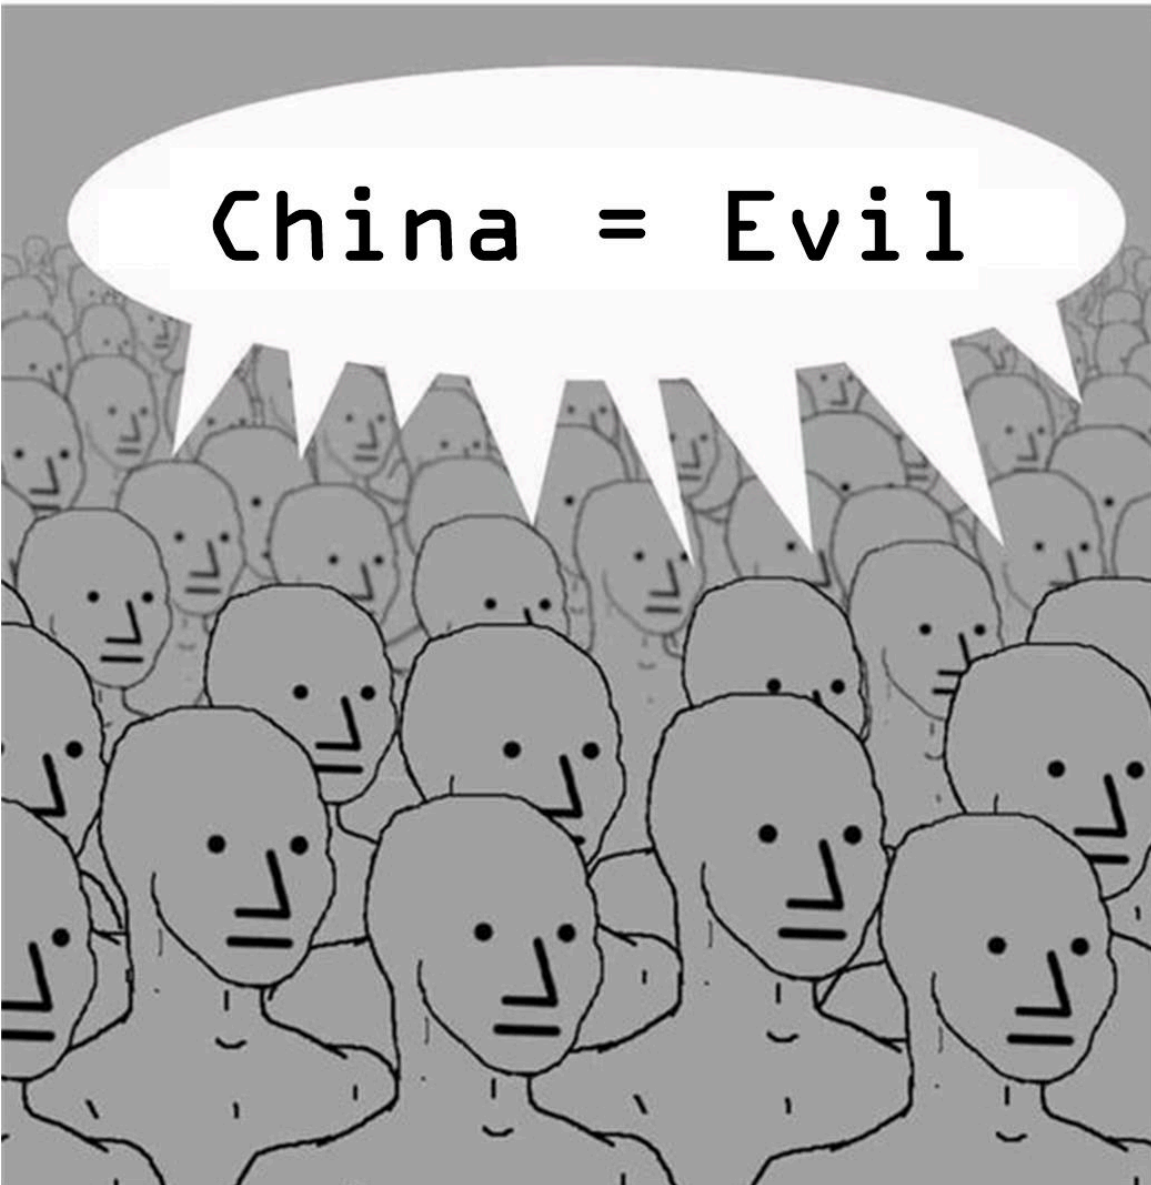

And all the thoughts of 330 million people had zero effect on my life.

Frankly obnoxious headlines like "Trump wasn't wrong about China. But here's how Biden can do a better job" and "Biden must not fall into China's smooth relations trap" suggest that Washington's political class is single-minded: maintain an aggressive, hostile stance toward China.

Trump was wrong about China. In 2016, as a presidential contender and he launched a rhetorical tirade against China accusing that country of "raping" the U.S. economy. In 2018, he added that in addition to rape, it had caused the opioid crisis. These accusations depended on racist stereotypes about China and worked to hide the ineptness of the profit-driven U.S. health system and poor innovation record of the economy.

Trump launched his racist hysteria against China in 2018 with deceitful claims about opioids, trade, technology, and continued in 2020 with demonstrably false allegations about COVID-19's origins. (Notably, recent media accounts, including the U.K.-based Independent and the Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post, have reported that COVID-19 cases appeared in Europe far earlier than initially believed.) Trump's racially-driven rhetoric exposed the U.S. ruling class's deepening leadership incapacity in a crisis and its frightening inability to offer and implement rational solutions to complex problems.

China = Evil

[1] Donald trump will not be able to hurt or harm China.

Happened. Donald Trump's anti-China policies were a complete failure. Oh, it's much worse than that. It was a "train wreck". The USA ended up getting harmed in so many ways. From domestically, to internationally, to scientifically, to socially. The United States has paid the price for these actions.

It's not that I wanted to hurt the USA, but I just didn't want myself or my family to die. And that meant that I had to take on the President and his well-paid army of war-mongering neocons with a lust for war, and desire to kill. I was successful. The complete and utter failure of the Trump policies against China were astounding and will be recorded in the history books as something that you want to avoid at all costs.

[2] All American military ventures against China will fail.

This anti-China line of thought provides no real insight into Trump's demented psychology or the validity of the establishment's China views. Instead, it only further exposes the persistent void in policy ideas on economic development and the ruling class's helplessness in leading innovation. Blaming China replaces reasonable interrogation of this failure of economic and social innovation.

One egregious example of the general incapacity for efficient leadership can be seen in the bloated military sector. According to a Government Accounting Office report published this month, of "46 types of aircraft [examined by inspectors] ... only three met their annual mission capable goals in a majority of the years for fiscal years 2011 through 2019." Less than 3% of military aircraft types are consistently service-ready, in other words. Meanwhile, the military budget approaches $800 billion annually.

Massive waste that ties government contracts to political donations (to both major parties), reflects the failure across all sectors to produce sustainability, innovative technology, and necessary infrastructure for a high-level quality of life. If comparisons to the 1970s are permissible, the U.S. is approaching levels of stagnation that required the ruling class to craft neoliberalism as a class strategy for renewing its power and restoring capital accumulation. This time, neoliberalism is in crisis.

And fail they did. From HK, to Xinjigng, to Taiwan, to the South China Sea. They all failed, and failed spectacularly. You can go one by one, but there are no successes in any of them; not one.

- Schumer: Trump 'Lost Hong Kong'
- The Week Donald Trump Lost the South China Sea
- While you weren't looking, Donald Trump lost Hong Kong

It was hardly a secret throughout the Trump administration. Now, dying embers within sight, and with minimum fanfare, comes the declassification – virtually the whole document, minus a few redactions – of the US Strategic Framework for the Indo-Pacific.

Why now, no less than 30 years before the usual, standard US declassification/public record protocols apply? Don't expect an answer from Trump or from his National Security Adviser Robert O'Brien.

- UNZ

[3] The harder Donald Trump tries to take on China and hurt it, the effects will boomerang back to hurt Trump and his family personally.

And isn't that what is happening? Isn't his family and him personally getting "hits" by the American public and legal system?

[4] Any WMD's implemented by America to hurt China will boomerang to the USA a hundred-fold and more Evidence for this botched leadership can be seen in the incapacity to adequately meet the COVID-19 danger. The U.S. government proved unable to deliver necessary medical equipment or to define a scientifically-sound national public health policy. It wasted time and resources and still seems incapable of controlling a contagion that has cost more than 263,000 lives.

And look at how America is handling the COVID-19 coronavirus issue, eh? This singular issue is toppling the entire nation, and government alone. It's more than just mismanagement, it's a fiasco of historic proportions.

In fact, this mishandling (whether it is a bio-weapon or a pandemic) will go down in the history books as a massive blunder and mistakes and Trump and his administration will be labeled as clowns and buffoons for all of eternity as a result.

The bottom line is this.

You can control the events that affect your personal life and the lives of your family. You just need to control your personal affirmations. You cannot control the entire nations, you are not MM. But you have the ability to control that realm that you inhabit. So do NOT get all hung up and hot and bothered with what you read in the "news". It's nonsense. Concentrate on you and your family.

And keep in mind, that here, yes I Mr. MM himself, have you all in my affirmation prayers. I'm watching your backs. So don't get too fearful.

It's all good.

Keep in mind that what you think might be bad, if you read the “news” might end up being the best thing that could ever happen to you and your family. So do not let the “news” affect you. Again... for the third time... concentrate on you and your family. Concentrate on happiness and safety. You will be fine.

I love this story:

"One evening, my mother made dinner after she had completed a hard day's work.

She put a plate of eggs, salad and burnt toast in front of my father and me.

I immediately noticed.

The burnt toast and I were waiting to see if my father was going to complain about it.

But he started to eat everything.

Then smiling, he asked me how was my day at school.

My mum apologized to my father for the burnt toast.

I will never forget his response to her:

'Honey, I love burnt toast!'

Later, when I went to bed and my father came over to kiss me goodnight, I asked him if he really liked the burnt toast.

He hugged me and said,

'Your mother has had a difficult and hard day and she is really tired. She went out of her way to prepare the meal for us. Why blame her and hurt her!

Burnt toast never hurt anyone; but words can be very painful!'

We have to know how to appreciate what others do for us, even if it's not perfect, because it's the intention to do well that counts, and no one is perfect."
